Moments & Markers: An Adolph Rosenblatt Retrospective Beginning June 15 at Jewish Museum Milwaukee

One of Milwaukee's most beloved artists will be the subject of a new retrospective at Jewish Museum Milwaukee (JMM), a program of the Milwaukee Jewish Federation, 1360 N. Prospect Ave., June 15 through August 27.

Moments & Markers: An Adolph Rosenblatt Retrospective celebrates the distinctively joyous work of the longtime Milwaukee sculptor, who died this year at the age of 83. Among the works on display will be the iconic Lunch counter at the Oriental Pharmacy and Balcony at The Oriental Theater, two sizable installations famous for the wit, flair and sheer affection with which they capture the city's diverse residents. As Dean Jensen of the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel once wrote, "Rosenblatt succeeds more than just about any other artist in conveying a real sense of the peculiar spirit...of Milwaukee."

Though a Connecticut native who earned a BFA from Yale (where he studied with the illustrious Josef Albers, among many others), Rosenblatt raised his family and spent most of this adult life in Milwaukee. He taught for many years at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, where he influenced countless students.

Trained as a painter, Rosenblatt began to experiment with thicker and thicker textures, eventually leaving the palette knife behind in favor of roughly hewn hand-painted ceramics. As Jensen wrote, "the longer one studies Rosenblatt's clay works, the more they suggest Expressionist pictures that somehow left the canvas and took on a third dimension."

The exhibit will open at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 15, with Moments & Markers: An Adolph Rosenblatt Retrospective Opening Preview. Visitors are invited to lace up their walking shoes at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, June 18, for East Side Stomping Grounds: A Walking History Tour, a trip through the historic neighborhood whose memorable characters and colorful settings inspired much of the artist's work.
