Get Informed

Milwaukee Neighborhood News Service (NNS) is one of the premier places to find information on the racial disparities in Milwaukee. They recently published "Marching On: 50 Years After the Milwaukee Marches." Get your copy at Jewish Museum Milwaukee or contact info@milwaukeeenns.org.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MILWAUKEE Libraries

Search the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (UWM) Libraries for "March on Milwaukee" to find articles and other reading materials.

America's Black Holocaust Museum builds public awareness of the harmful legacies of slavery in America and promotes racial repair, reconciliation, and healing. ABHM is currently a Museum-Without-Walls, so visit their website for more information.

Volunteer

Operation DREAM provides holistic support and developmental opportunities for young men and their families through mentoring by successful men from the same communities who help them survive and then thrive by instilling in them the grit, determination and resilience needed to rise above generational poverty.

Many churches and synagogues have social action committees in place to serve as the hub for current social action projects and making recommendations to speaking up for the oppressed, persecuted and overlooked citizens in local communities.

Share Dialogue

March On Milwaukee 50th Anniversary is dedicated to the commemoration of Milwaukee's Civil Rights Movement and the 200 nights of Fair Housing Marches that took place in 1967, and is organizing 200 Nights of Freedom, a diverse group of volunteers from a broad range of communities. Check out their website and Facebook page for more information and programs.

The Zeidler Center for Public Discussion's mission is to foster civil dialogue and invite trust in the midst of differences. Check their website for upcoming events as well as training to become a facilitator of civil dialogue.

Annually, more than 160,000 individuals participate in YWCA racial justice programs and services that increase awareness, build coalitions, and transform local and national inequities in areas such as employment, housing, and voting. Check out your local YWCA for programs and other learning opportunities.

Jewish Community Relations Council's Black Jewish Alliance works to deepen personal relationships, increase understanding of the other, and take action as powerful allies. Contact Elana Kahn at elanak@milwaukeejewish.org to learn more about joining.

Hours Against Hate is an initiative designed to help stop bigotry and promote respect across lines of culture, religion, race, tradition, class, sexual orientation and gender. It is a call to action. Participants are encouraged to do service projects alongside a fellow community member that, "doesn't look like you, pray like you, love like you or live like you."
